STRANGE ODOR BAFFLES POLICE

A strange odor, in Wilmington Tuesday night, has the Wilmington police department baffled.

Described by some of the people who called the Police Station as 'nauseating', it most closely resembled the odor one associates with propane gas.

The odor was in several other towns as well, with the Woburn Police receiving some calls, and some Reading residents reporting the odor.

The Burlington Police called a local resident who works for the Northeastern Gas Transmission lines, and were assured that no gas was escaping from the underground gas pipes.

The first call to the Wilmington police came about 6:30 pm Tuesday, from homes near the Town Park, both on Main St and on Chestnut Street.

By 8:30 pm the smell could be detected near the De Moulas stores, and at 10:30 pm there were calls from near the Tewksbury line - but Tewksbury police received no calls.

Over 50 calls were received by the local police, both telephone lines being busy for part of the time.

Wilmington police theorize that the gas may have come from a plant close to Boston, spreading in the Wilmington area by reason of an 'inversion' in air temperatures.

FINE PHYSICAL EDUCATION IN WILMINGTON

Above Mr. Colson (right) talks over plans with Cushing in Cushing's office.

A new vault is to be built, and Safety Deposit Boxes are planned, for the customer's convenience.

The contractor is the J. Vaccaro Inc. company of 511 Lytic Avenue, Somerville.

Parking in Rear
About two acres in back of the bank building is to be converted into public parking area, with a hot-top surface, and an exit to Church Street via Olson Road, the practically non-existent public highway that is beside the Wilmington Fire Station.

MILK SOLD IN WILMINGTON IS EXCELLENT, AGENT SAYS

In a report to the Board of Health, Public Health Officer Patrick Thibau has reported that the milk supplies in Wilmington, tested during the month of March, turned out to be very good.

17 of the 18 milk firms had their milk supplies tested. A total of 333 examinations were made.

Unsatisfactory samples were found in flavored milk, and in other prepared milk products, in a few instances. Thibau said that this is not unexpected, and that in some cases it is impossible to prevent infection of flavored milk. The general average, he said, was high.

In all cases the dairy that had sold the sample which did not meet the standards was notified.

TOWN NOTES

Easter Sunday

Easter Sunday was, shall we say, a New England Day. The sun was out, snow fell, it was windy, and every five minutes there was a change. There were plenty of Easter Bonnets, but not much temptation to stand around and talk, after church was over.

Our Mayor, George Spanos, was so disgusted at the weather that he is going to attend Easter Services again, next Sunday - this time at a Greek Orthodox Church, in Lowell, as the guest of Scotty Leganos.

Which sort of puts George about a half a step up, on Mark Twain.

The Fishing Season

We haven't noted large numbers of our local nimrods heading for the Town Hall and fishing licenses as yet - but there is still 10 days till the 1961 season opens.

Our personal prediction is that many of the trout to be planted in Wilmington's waters during the next week will be lost, and never seen again.

The water is too high, and we don't think it will be down in time for the season.

We think it would have been better to let the season open on April 29th., as the State wanted, in the first place.

National Library Week

April 16th to the 22nd is National Library Week, and the Friends of the Wilmington Library will hold Open House on the first day, at the Wilmington Library.

The Open House is to be from 2 to 5 pm, with refreshments, cookies and punch (mild, we are assured). The paintings of Everett Gager, of Powder House Circle, are to be exhibited.

We are told that there will be a couple of committees in this work - one to conduct guided tours of the building, and the other guided tours of the grounds, we presume.

Duxbury Please Note

The Duxbury Public Schools had a long-standing problem answered for them, last Thursday, by the Wilmington Permanent Building Committee.

It started when Chairman Erwin Hanke noted that the console, for the public address system, as planned, for the new school off Salem Street is planned for 300 outlets. Thinking that a smaller one could do, he explored the question.

The next smaller size, in a standard good enough for the school, he was told, was one for 12 outlets, such as is in the Glen Road and Boutwell St. schools.

Hanke asked if it would be possible to combine several different makes in the one system, and thus save money. The architect advised against it, saying that the problems of upkeep and maintenance would take any savings that could be made - and then cited a new school in Duxbury, where this had been done.

They had saved $1900 in the costs, by using parts from one company, and parts from another company, the architect said.
All the speakers, for instance, were Japanese made. And, for a full year the town has been trying to get the loudspeaker system to work, but without any success.

'That's easy enough', member Ray McClure observed. 'No one in Duxbury speaks Japanese!'
